

SPACE, MATERIALITY, AND LIGHT

THE ART OF ARCHITECTURE

The Haddonfield Outdoor Sculpture Trust (HOST) is proud to present a special architectural exhibition featuring the work of Jay Reinert and Thomas B. Wagner—two regional architects whose practices continue to shape how we experience home, heritage, and the built landscape of South Jersey.

In this exhibit, Reinert and Wagner explore the elemental ideas that anchor their work: light, space, materiality, threshold, embrace, and connection. Though each architect brings a distinct voice, both share a commitment to design that enriches daily life—revealing how thoughtfully shaped environments can elevate the way we see, move, and feel.

Visitors are invited to consider light not simply as illumination, but as a living presence that reveals proportion and atmosphere throughout the day. Space becomes a layered experience—offering clarity, intrigue, and quiet moments of discovery. Materiality expresses authenticity and craft, grounding architecture in touch and time. Threshold marks the essential transition from public to private, where identity and welcome meet. Embrace is the feeling of being gently held by form and sequence. And connection speaks to the deep relationship between dwelling, inhabitant, and the surrounding natural world.

As you move through the exhibit, we invite you to slow down, look closely, and experience architecture as both art and environment—an ever-changing interplay of elements that shape how we live. Thank you for joining us, and enjoy the ARTWALK.

About the Artist – Architect: Jay Reinert

J. Reinert Architecture is a Haddonfield-based practice dedicated to crafting homes that feel rooted, personal, and light, atmosphere, and the rhythms of daily living—designing spaces that reveal themselves gradually and continue to reward discovery over time. With a focus on contextual sensitivity, thoughtful material expression, and enduring craftsmanship,

Jay creates homes that honor their surroundings while enriching the way people live within them. Guided by the belief that beauty grows from authenticity, his work invites connection—between inside and out, past and present, and people and place.

About the Artist – Architect: Thomas B. Wagner

Thomas B. Wagner Architect brings a refined, context-driven approach to designing residential and commercial projects in Haddonfield and the region. Guided by a deep appreciation for traditional American and European architecture, Thom Wagner balances timeless form with modern comfort and clarity. His work reflects an elegant restraint—drawing from classical precedent while responding to contemporary living—to create spaces that feel gracious and quietly sophisticated. With careful attention to scale, detail, and neighborhood fabric, he produces architecture that stands with dignity and harmony, honoring the past while shaping a thoughtful future for the communities he serves.
